Put health insurance on your child's back-to-school list.

Health insurance is an important part of your child's daily life. It helps them to do their best at school and play. Insured children miss fewer days of school.

Florida KidCare is child health insurance you can afford!

Who is eligible? Children from birth through age 18, who do not have health insurance. Eligibility is based on family size and income.

What does it cost? Some families pay an affordable monthly premium. Many families pay nothing at all.

How do I apply? Apply on-line at www.floridakidcare.org or call toll free 1-888-540-5437 to request an application.

What is the CSC?

The Children's Services Council is a unit of government created by the voters of Broward County in 2000 to coordinate and fund services, for and on behalf of children in our community.

Mission Statement

To provide leadership, advocacy and resources necessary to enhance children's lives and empower them to become responsible, productive adults through collaborative planning and funding of a continuum of quality care.

Vision Statement

All children in Broward County should have the opportunity to realize their full potential, their hopes and their dreams, supported by a nurturing family and community.

What does the CSC do?

The CSC Improves the Quality of Life for Broward's Children and Families by Funding Over 200 Programs with Over 100 Agencies Providing Much Needed Services

COMMUNITY RESOURCES

Be the Change... VOLUNTEER

What drives you?
What is your passion?

Giving children and youth a good start in life by mentoring them; helping to feed the hungry; protecting and reclaiming the environment; helping seniors to continue living at home by delivering needed food and supplies to them; bringing medical care to the neighborhoods where it is needed; giving opportunities to low and moderate income people to make a better life for themselves by teaching them life and literacy skills; fostering arts and culture in our community; giving pets and wildlife the humane care they deserve...

If there is an area of need in our community, chances are that a nonprofit organization works to address it. And if there is such a nonprofit, chances are that it needs volunteers to help it fulfill its mission.

Volunteer opportunities for all!

Since 1974, Volunteer Broward has connected those who want to volunteer with thousands of volunteer opportunities available through hundreds of local nonprofits. Funded by United Way of Broward County and Children's Services Council, and a Hands On Network affiliate, Volunteer Broward is the central focus for the development, growth and coordination of volunteer activities and services throughout Broward County.

Whether you are a professional, a retiree, a student or a homemaker, our flexible volunteer projects schedule will provide you or your corporate, civic, faith-based or student group the volunteer opportunity you want.

So, do you want to be part of the solution?
Do you want to "be the change?"

HELP OTHERS with their tax returns through VITA

Help low income, elderly, disabled and individuals with limited English prepare their Federal Income Tax returns through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program. During the 2008 filing season, volunteers in Broward County helped over 7,700 taxpayers prepare their 2007 Federal income tax returns at 32 volunteer sites.

If you enjoy helping people and working with them to make a difficult task easier, VITA may be for you. VITA is sponsored by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and various community partners. We are looking for volunteers to help taxpayers with their income tax returns.

VITA assists individuals who have problems preparing their own returns and cannot afford professional assistance. VITA helps these people fill out basic tax returns. They also answer tax questions. Assistance is provided at locations such as community centers, libraries and churches.

VITA volunteers include retirees, homemakers, college students and businessmen and women. Volunteers learn how to prepare basic tax returns by successfully completing a training course that includes not only basic tax law, but use of professional-grade tax software so that the volunteer can prepare tax returns on a computer for electronic filing.

The IRS provides free training material for all volunteers. Training is provided by our partners. In return, VITA expects volunteers to commit to working a minimum of four hours per week during the filing season, January 15th – April 15th.

Training is conducted at locations convenient for volunteers. Volunteers are used in many different ways. For example, volunteers help set up and organize a site, while others do the local publicity for a site.

The IRS says, "If you have a talent and would like to help, VITA can find a way to involve you in the program."

Now is the time to sign up as a volunteer!

If you would like to become a volunteer, or if your organization would be interested in sponsoring a VITA program, contact IRS VITA Coordinators Gus Lilavois at 954-423-7629, or Julia Marinos at 954-423-7627. You may also contact Kristina Merrill of Volunteer Broward at 954-522-6761. ■

Budgeting for Today! Save BIG on any income

By: April Lewis-Parks

Do you know where your paycheck goes? If not, it's time to start budgeting. Keeping track of your own expenses is daunting enough; monitoring the spending of an entire family takes even extra effort and commitment. If you start small and involve everyone in the process, you will be on your way to a working family budget, and a plan for your financial future.

Budgeting can be easy if you are given the right tools and guidelines. Consolidated Credit Counseling Services, Inc. has a free Budgeting Made Easy booklet that you can download from their website, www.ConsolidatedCredit.org. It is a very helpful resource to get you started with the budgeting process. "Remember, now's a great time to learn how to create and live within a budget. The more you put off the budgeting process the longer you will be in financial chaos," says Howard Dvorkin, founder of Consolidated Credit Counseling Services and author of Credit Hell: How to Dig Out of Debt. "If you don't learn to manage your money now, the headaches your debts create may stay with you for a long time," he continued.

Find out what's draining your finances. Keep track of where your money goes for a month. Use a spreadsheet, financial software, or a pen and paper and categorize your expenses. Doing this will reveal whether you're spending too much on expenses you could trim, such as restaurant outings and gas. Then you can consider cooking at home more often or consolidating driving trips. Cut back as necessary without cutting out expenses important to you. The following are some expert tips for beginning the budget process.

Start with dining out and groceries. Take budgeting baby steps and start by tracking your grocery and food budget for a month, including restaurant meals, coffee shop treats and vending machine snacking. Keep all receipts and write down what you spent for an entire month. You may be surprised how quickly the Chinese restaurant deliveries and extra bag of potato chips add up. When the month is over, you have already tracked a major category of your household budget – congratulations!

Now set up more categories. Some expenditures vary little from month to month, such as housing (mortgage or rent), utility bills, insurance and day care. Others can fluctuate – entertainment, travel, home improvement and auto repair. Devise some basic categories, adding or combining categories after you have a few months of budgeting under your belt.

Analyze, cut out the fat and start saving. Look at your spending habits with an analytical eye and cut where you can. Include a monthly savings goal in your budget and have that amount automatically withdrawn from your paycheck and deposited into an account.

Include the kids. Give a small portion of your budget to your kids to control and they'll learn the basics of earning and spending wisely while they're young. The snack food or dining-out portion of your budget is a good place to start your pint-sized financial planner. When Junior sees how much two pizzas, four sodas and a round of ice cream sundaes takes out of the monthly allotment, he may even stop begging to eat out every Friday night.

Make it easy and keep at it. Don't get too fancy with your budget categories; the hassle of deciding where a particular expenditure fits may prevent you from continuing with your record-keeping. Find a central place for receipts and pick a time to do your paperwork. Once or twice a week is fine. ■

Consolidated Credit Counseling Services, Inc. is a nonprofit public education organization. Consolidated Credit's mission is to help families end financial crises and help them solve money management problems through education, motivation, and professional counseling. Getting the Most Gas Mileage

DRIVING MORE EFFICIENTLY

DRIVE SENSIBLY

Aggressive driving (speeding, rapid acceleration and braking) wastes gas. It can lower your gas mileage by 33 percent at highway speeds and by 5 percent around town. Sensible driving is also safer for you and others, so you may save more than gas money.

Fuel Economy Benefit: 5-33%
Equivalent Gasoline Savings: $0.20-$1.35/gallon

OBSERVE THE SPEED LIMIT

While each vehicle reaches its optimal fuel economy at a different speed (or range of speeds), gas mileage usually decreases rapidly at speeds above 60 mph. You can assume that each 5 mph you drive over 60 mph is like paying an additional $0.30 per gallon for gas.

Observing the speed limit is also safer.

Fuel Economy Benefit: 7-23%
Equivalent Gasoline Savings: $0.29-$0.94/gallon

REMOVE EXCESS WEIGHT

Avoid keeping unnecessary items in your vehicle, especially heavy ones. An extra 100 pounds in your vehicle could reduce your MPG by up to 2%. The reduction is based on the percentage of extra weight relative to the vehicle's weight and affects smaller vehicles more than larger ones.

Fuel Economy Benefit: 1-2%/100 lbs
Equivalent Gasoline Savings: $0.04-$0.08/gallon

AVOID EXCESSIVE IDLING

Idling gets 0 miles per gallon. Cars with larger engines typically waste more gas at idle than do cars with smaller engines.

USE CRUISE CONTROL

Using cruise control on the highway helps you maintain a constant speed and, in most cases, will save gas.

USE OVERDRIVE GEARS

When you use overdrive gearing, your car's engine speed goes down. This saves gas and reduces engine wear.

KEEPING YOUR CAR IN SHAPE

KEEP YOUR ENGINE PROPERLY TUNED

Fixing a car that is noticeably out of tune or has failed an emissions test can improve its gas mileage by an average of 4 percent, though results vary based on the kind of repair and how well it is done. Fixing a serious maintenance problem, such as a faulty oxygen sensor, can improve your mileage by as much as 40 percent.

Fuel Economy Benefit: 4%
Equivalent Gasoline Savings: $0.16/gallon

CHECK & REPLACE AIR FILTERS REGULARLY

Replacing a clogged air filter can improve your car's gas mileage by as much as 10 percent. Your car's air filter keeps impurities from damaging the inside of your engine. Not only will replacing a dirty air filter save gas, it will protect your engine.

Fuel Economy Benefit: up to 10%
Equivalent Gasoline Savings: up to $0.41/gallon

KEEP TIRES PROPERLY INFLATED

You can improve your gas mileage by around 3.3 percent by keeping your tires inflated to the proper pressure. Under-inflated tires can lower gas mileage by 0.4 percent for every 1 psi drop in pressure of all four tires. Properly inflated tires are safer and last longer.

Fuel Economy Benefit: up to 3%
Equivalent Gasoline Savings: up to $0.12/gallon

USE THE RECOMMENDED GRADE OF MOTOR OIL

You can improve your gas mileage by 1-2 percent by using the manufacturer's recommended grade of motor oil. For example, using 10W-30 motor oil in an engine designed to use 5W-30 can lower your gas mileage by 1-2 percent. Using 5W-30 in an engine designed for 5W-20 can lower your gas mileage by 1-1.5 percent. Also, look for motor oil that says "Energy Conserving" on the API performance symbol to be sure it contains friction-reducing additives.

Fuel Economy Benefit: 1-2%
Equivalent Gasoline Savings: $0.04-$0.08/gallon

PLANNING & COMBINING TRIPS

Combining errands into one trip saves you time and money. Several short trips taken from a cold start can use twice as much fuel as a longer multipurpose trip covering the same distance when the engine is warm. Trip planning ensures that traveling is done when the engine is warmed-up and efficient. With a little planning, you can avoid retracing your route and reduce the distance you travel as well. You'll not only save fuel, but also reduce wear and tear on your car.

COMMUTING

If you can stagger your work hours to avoid peak rush hours, you'll spend less time sitting in traffic and consume less fuel. If you own more than one vehicle, drive the one that gets the best gas mileage whenever possible. Consider telecommuting (working from home) if your employer permits it.

If possible, take advantage of carpools and ride-share programs. You can cut your weekly fuel costs in half and save wear on your car if you take turns driving with other commuters. Many urban areas allow vehicles with multiple passengers to use special High Occupancy Vehicle (HOV) lanes. Consider using public transit if it is available and convenient for you. The American Public Transit Transportation Association has links to information about public transportation in your state.

TRAVELING

A roof rack or carrier provides additional cargo space and may allow you to meet your needs with a smaller car. However, a loaded roof rack can decrease your fuel economy by 5 percent. Reduce aerodynamic drag and improve your fuel economy by placing items inside the trunk whenever possible.

Avoid carrying unneeded items, especially heavy ones. An extra 100 lbs in the trunk reduces a typical car's fuel economy by 1-2 percent. ■

Note: Cost savings are based on an assumed fuel price of $4.08/gallon.

The Parenting Experience

By Maureen Johnson, MA

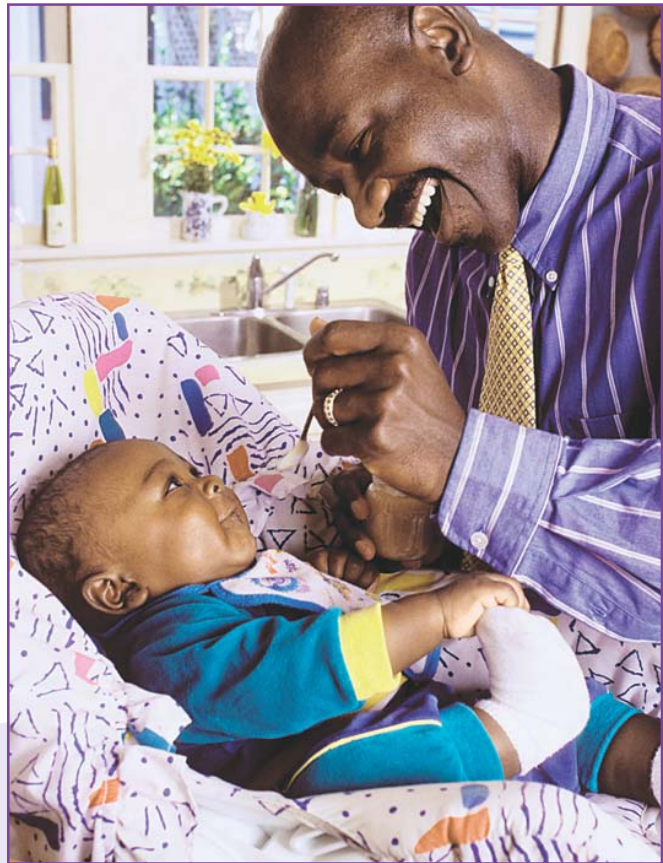

Being a parent is one of life's most challenging roles. Especially during trying times, like a toddler's tantrum or a teenager's self-centered quest for independence. Parenting can be rewarding, enlightening and enjoyable as well as frustrating, demanding and exhausting. It is the one job you take on with no job description, a handbook or training that can only be learned through trial and error. Parents have different views of their children. Some of us view them as an extension of ourselves; others view their children as opportunities "to get it right" (...getting their life right), etc. Even guilt, pride and envy can be a part of parenting.

A child's first experience of the outside world is through their parent. The experience becomes their blueprint of what to expect from the world outside their front door. A parent's physical and emotional health and ability to provide financial stability are all factors that make a difference in a child's world. Think about the child whose behavior at school has made a marked change when brought to the school's attention that a parent is suddenly absent from home due to illness, separation or a second job.

The experience of being a parent is an intense and personal one. Once you take that bundle of joy home, it is completely dependent upon you for all its needs. It can be a lonely feeling if you do not have the right support. Your only experience comes from your parents, and you may or may not agree with all of their methods. However, once you begin parenting, you begin doing the things they have done and, as some say, you may "hear your mother or father's words coming out of your mouth." Again, it is all you know, as they created your blueprint.

A person's blueprint reflects how they were reared. Examples of this include cycles of physical or sexual abuse, family stress (financial or emotional), family management problems, poor parental control, severe discipline practices, substance abuse or the parent who reports they were doing okay until their son or daughter turned two or began middle school. Regardless of the issue, parents need to understand the importance of the role they play in their child's life, understand child development and have the skills to discontinue negative behaviors as well as increase appropriate behaviors.

The importance of making positive choices in your interactions and discipline choices are key components to positive rearing. A parent who engages in negative interactions or has challenges in dealing with behaviors will rear a child displaying negative behaviors who does not interact well with others. The parent engaging in positive interactions and using positive discipline techniques will rear a child who learns positive interactions and displays positive behaviors. Parents must feel confident in their parenting skills and empowered in order to make positive choices in disciplining and teaching their children. There is no manual or handbook, but with the right support systems and level of confidence, parenting can be a great experience. Those exhausting days and sleepless nights can actually pay off when you see your child take the first steps, utter the first words and head to the first day at school. Before you know it, you will be watching the child grow to a young man or woman walking across the stage for high school graduation. Wouldn't that be wonderful? ■

Maureen Johnson is a Clinical Program Supervisor at Children's Home Society who has worked with children and families in both New York and Florida for more than 25 years. Her work with families has spanned from dependency case management to individual and family counseling and parent education.

Children's Home society is a non-profit multiservice agency that supports Florida's most vulnerable children and families. The agency was first established in Jacksonville, Florida, in 1902 and for 106 years has evolved, grown and responded to the increasingly complex needs of Florida's most vulnerable residents. We have 14 divisions throughout the state of Florida and each division provides services needed in the counties they serve.

How YOU Can Support Your Child's Development

Age 0 – 6 Months

What You Can Expect of Your Child

- Makes gurgling, babbling, cooing sounds
- Responds to voices
- Enjoys interacting with others
- Smiles in response to a smile from others
- Reacts to emotions of others
- Responds to own name
- Explores with hands and mouth
- Supports own head for more than a moment
- Rolls from stomach to back and back to stomach
- Uses gestures and expressions to communicate wants and needs

What You Can Do to Support Development

- Hug your baby often to help her feel loved and safe
- Talk or sing to your baby while doing everyday things like dressing, bathing, feeding and playing
- Talk face-to-face and use her name often
- Play on the floor with her
- Read books to her every day
- Make sure that other caregivers form loving and comforting relationships with your child
- Make scheduled well baby visits to your baby's doctor and make sure she has all of her shots

Age 6 – 12 Months

What You Can Expect of Your Child

- Prefers mother or regular caregiver to all others
- Shy with strangers; cries when parent leaves
- Responds to simple verbal requests
- Looks at correct picture when the image is named
- Understands names of objects
- Imitates gestures; tries to imitate words
- Uses single words or gestures
- Repeats sounds or gestures for attention
- Finds objects easily hidden while they watch
- Creeps on hands and knees
- Walks holding furniture or independently
- Feeds self with fingers

What You Can Do to Support Development

- Continue to hold your baby often and talk to him about everyday activities
- Read books to your baby every day
- Encourage him to imitate gestures by playing games like peek-a-boo and pat-a-cake
- Point out names of things in picture books and ask him to point to them
- Provide a safe place for him to crawl
- Introduce him to other children and adults
- Continue doctor visits and shots

Age 12 – 24 Months

What You Can Expect of Your Child

- Begins to show defiant behavior
- Shows more independence but has periods of separation anxiety
- Begins make-believe play
- Recognizes names of familiar people, objects and body parts
- Uses 2 – 3 words and gestures to communicate
- Says several single words by 15 months; uses two to four word sentences by age 2

- Seeks out and enjoys other children
- Climbs onto and down from furniture unassisted
- Begins to run

What You Can Do to Support Development

- Use words to describe objects and people
- Respond to and initiate your child's pretend play
- Help your child use words to describe emotions and express feelings
- Find time for your child to interact with other children in safe, supervised settings
- Try to have family meals, naps and bedtime at the same time every day
- Continue shots and health checkups
- Keep holding and hugging your child and read with your child every day

Age 2 – 3 Years

What You Can Expect of Your Child

- Expresses affection openly
- Separates easily from parents
- Makes mechanical toys work
- Identifies common objects and pictures
- Can be mostly understood by a stranger
- Combines several words together to express thoughts, feelings and wants
- Can take short turns in simple games
- Understands the meaning of "mine" and "his/hers"
- Walks up and down stairs alternating feet
- Pedals tricycle
- Turns book pages one at a time
- Holds a pencil in writing position

What You Can Do to Support Development

- Read with her every day
- Read books and magazines in front of her so she sees that you value reading
- Give your child lots of writing and coloring materials (crayons, pencils, paper, etc.)
- Listen to her and answer her questions
- Give her riding toys, building toys and a climbing structure in a safe and supervised setting
- Make sure she has time to play with other children and supervise her play to help her learn to take turns and cooperate
- Continue shots and health checkups, including dental visits
- Hug your child often and talk about everyday people, places and things

Age 4 – 5 Years

What You Can Expect of Your Child

- Sometimes demanding, sometimes eagerly cooperative
- Wants to be like her friends
- Agrees to rules and wants others to follow rules
- Can count 10 or more objects and name four colors
- Recalls part of a story
- Speaks sentences of more than five words
- Stands on one foot for 10 seconds or longer
- Hops, somersaults
- Prints some letters
- Dresses and undresses without assistance
- Uses fork, spoon and sometimes a knife

What You Can Do to Support Development

- Continue to hug your child often and read together every day

DEVELOPMENT

- Have longer conversations with him; use words that match his growing vocabulary
- Set and enforce limits and explain why there are rules
- Provide different kinds of toys, materials and games that spark creativity
- Provide plenty of opportunity for your child to play with other children in safe, supervised settings
- Provide safe space where he can run, jump and exercise with adult supervision
- Continue shots and health checkups, including dental visits

Age 6 – 8 Years

What You Can Expect of Your Child

- Friends become more important; want to be liked by other children
- Growth rate slows and can be uneven
- Better understanding of right and wrong; developing conscience
- Small muscle development increases coordination; better able to tie own shoes, use writing materials, play musical instruments and use eating utensils
- Learning to read and write
- Understand and concerned about how others feel
- Increasing vocabulary and use of language
- Enjoys fantasy play and make-believe

What You Can Do to Support Development

- Continue to hug your child and compliment her for doing things well
- Be sure she has access to books; continue to read together
- Provide writing materials, art supplies and music; share her enthusiasm for creative interests
- Give her more responsibility; ask for help with simple household chores and be sure she follows through

- Provide opportunities to experience a variety of physical activities that help develop large muscles – running, riding a bike, dancing or playing sports
- Talk to her about things she likes and what she does
- Continue regular health and dental checkups

Age 9 – 11 Years

What You Can Expect of Your Child

- Friends are very important; often join clubs or form groups of best friends with similar interests
- Experience peer pressure; interested in conforming or belonging
- Able to read and write; interest in fantasy stories and fiction
- Body is maturing physically; girls maturing more quickly than boys
- Develop special interests in hobbies, sports, creative activities
- Language becomes more adult-like
- Wants more independence from family; tests limits and rules

What You Can Do to Support Development

- Continue to show affection for your child and talk about his interests and activities
- Give him more complex responsibilities that require follow through; reward a job completed well
- Encourage him to join groups and clubs that offer opportunities to practice skills or explore new interests
- Take an interest in his friends and get to know their families
- Make your expectations clear and, when discipline is necessary, be consistent and fair
- Provide for quiet time and space for homework or just being alone
- Continue regular health and dental checkups ■

LITERACY: The Key to Your Child's Success in School and Beyond

Becoming a reader is the most important skill that children acquire. It helps them thrive and succeed in the world of school and beyond. Learning to read was once regarded as a skill that children acquire during their early school years. Recent studies show, however, that many of the skills children need in order to become successful readers are acquired before they start school. Luckily, there is a lot that you can do at home to help your child become a flourishing reader. You can support your young child's emerging reading skills today by:

Talking with your child

Every time a young child engages in conversation with a caring adult she has opportunities to learn and practice spoken language, and to expand and enrich her vocabulary. Surprisingly, studies show that vocabulary size is directly related to reading ability later. The importance of talking with children, therefore, cannot be overestimated – including talking with very young babies before they can talk themselves – because every conversation you have with a baby or young child is a literacy learning opportunity.

Reading books together

Experiences with quality books every day is an important requirement for children's future reading success. Books help young children make connections between the printed and spoken word – that the marks on the page mean something important. They introduce children to important skills such as rhyming and alliteration which help children focus on the sounds of words. They also expose children to new information and ideas, which enhance comprehension skills.

The benefits of books extend beyond these, however. A well chosen book can spark curiosity, provide entertainment or comfort, and help a child feel good about herself and her heritage. Books can become trusted friends that are looked at and listened to over and over again.

Tips for reading with your child:

1. Set the stage for story time by reading the book to yourself before you read it with your child. This helps familiarize you with the theme, pace, and tone of the story.
2. When you read, pause and talk with your child about the pictures.
3. Speak in different voices and use exaggerated sound effects to enhance the story for the listener.
4. Give your young child an opportunity to find or name familiar objects.
5. Encourage older children to predict what will happen in the story, to make connections with her experiences, and to discuss the meaning of new words and concepts.
6. When the child is familiar with the book, use question prompts to encourage him to talk about the story.
7. With preschoolers begin with 'what' questions: "What are the monkey's doing with the caps?" With older children, ask 'who', 'where', 'what', 'how', and 'why' questions.

Remember, stories are lasting gifts and even babies can fall in love with books. Begin reading with your child early and read often.

Creating a print-rich environment

An environment rich in print is one that invites the child to participate in a world where words and symbols play key roles. Everyday materials such as books, magazines, newspapers, instruction manuals, information labels on foods, notes on the refrigerator, calendars, and keyboards all introduce children to the purpose and meaning of print. When children see you reading and writing, they recognize these activities as valuable and they are more likely to be motivated to become readers and writers themselves.

You can help your child by modeling the use of print and by providing her with opportunities to use print throughout the day. Talk about what you are doing as you pay bills or check the ingredients in a recipe book. During a walk to the park, point out local street signs and logos of familiar stores or products. When writing the weekly shopping list, allow your child to contribute or write his own list. Activities such as these provide rich opportunities for children to learn literacy conventions.

Literacy has a high priority in the daily lives of adults and it must also have a high priority in the daily lives of children. The path to literacy begins early, it begins at home, and it begins with you, as a parent, working to create an environment where rich conversations and frequent reading are part of daily routines. ■

Early Learning Programs Positive for Families and Community

Why is early care and education so important? This question has more than one answer. Whether you are the parent of a curious toddler, a leading local business, or a caring community member; the bottom line is that early learning programs benefit children today, and reap community-wide rewards for years to come.

A life-long love of learning begins by providing children with access to early learning programs promoting success, while engaging their families in essential support services. For families, entering the early care system can be overwhelming. They often have questions like: Where do I look for services? What does a good program look like? What if I can't afford to pay? All of these questions and more can be answered through the Resource and Referral, Family Education and Supports services. By contacting this service, families receive consumer education packet information about early learning programs, with highlights on the importance of selecting quality services.

Parents can also be screened for eligibility for the School Readiness program's financial assistance for community-based care. The School Readiness program provides families with an income at or below 150% of the poverty level with access to early learning programs. A key component of eligibility for this program is also a developmental needs assessment, which when necessary, links children with appropriate services and supports. To obtain information about selecting a program or for eligibility determination for financial assistance for child care, please call Family Central, Inc. (FCI) at 954 724-4609 or visit www.elcbroward.org.

Do you have an enthusiastic 4-year-old?

Parents of four-year-old children are invited to participate in the Voluntary Pre-Kindergarten (VPK) program. The VPK program was created through a constitutional amendment passed in 2002 by Florida voters in an effort to prepare four-year-old children for entrance to kindergarten. The FREE program is for children who turn 4 years old by September 1st of the VPK year and who reside in Florida. The 2008-2009 school year program (beginning in August) consists of 540 instructional hours. In 2009, the summer program (beginning in June) will consist of 300 instructional hours. Parents have the opportunity to choose either the summer or school year program.

To register for VPK, parents need to bring proof of the child's age and proof of Florida residency to a designated community application site location. Upon registration, parents will receive a Certificate of Eligibility which can be used to enroll their children in a program with one of the approved providers. For a schedule of VPK registration locations or general questions please visit <http://www.elcbroward.org> or call the VPK Hotline at 1-866-YOU-4-VPK (1-866-968-4875).

The Coalition continues to reach families through outreach initiatives, which include health fair events providing links to important health and safety services. Community outreach events for families and providers are also listed on the Coalition's website at www.elcbroward.org. ■

Maternal Depression? Not me!

By Ellen Anderson, Director of Development,
Healthy Mothers-Healthy Babies Coalition of Broward County, Inc.

In fact, maternal depression can happen to any childbearing woman regardless of race, income, culture, age or education: 10%–15% of new mothers experience depression within a year after childbirth. Many others start experiencing it during their pregnancy. Some women refuse to tell anyone about their symptoms because they feel embarrassed, ashamed, or guilty about feeling depressed when they are “supposed to be happy.” They fear that by admitting they have a problem they will be viewed as an unfit parent. Having maternal depression does not mean you are a bad mother. You and your baby don’t have to suffer. There is help. The first step is recognizing that you need it.

Baby Blues or Real Depression? The blues that accompany the hormonal ups and downs of pregnancy dissipate within a few weeks after giving birth. Maternal depression, on the other hand, will not go away so easily. It may not even manifest itself until 3 months, 6 months or even up to two years after your baby is born. On the other hand, it can start to affect a mother and baby as early as the first trimester of pregnancy, when hormone levels start to fluctuate. Maternal depression affects a woman’s well-being and keeps her from functioning well. Sadness, lack of energy, trouble concentrating, anxiety, hopelessness and excessive concern about the baby’s health and safety are among the possible indicators of this condition.

Any of these symptoms during and after pregnancy that last longer than two weeks are signs of serious depression:

- Feeling restless or irritable
- Feeling sad, hopeless, and overwhelmed
- Crying a lot
- Having no energy or motivation
- Eating too little or too much
- Sleeping too little or too much
- Trouble focusing, remembering, or making decisions
- Feeling worthless and guilty
- Loss of interest or pleasure in activities
- Withdrawal from friends and family
- Having headaches, chest pains, heart palpitations (the heart beating fast and feeling like it is skipping beats), or hyperventilation (fast and shallow breathing)
- Fear of hurting the baby or oneself
- Lack of interest in the baby.

Maternal Depression Needs to be Treated.

Treatment can make a big difference for both you and your baby. Counseling, support groups, parental training and even medicines are things that can help. The first step in dealing with maternal depression is admitting to yourself and others that you feel sad. Do not be afraid or embarrassed to ask for help.

Help can come in many forms: your family; your friends; other mothers; your clergyman ... and sometimes you may need to seek professional help. Consult your doctor. If your depression is very severe, your doctor may refer you to a psychotherapist to help you “talk out” the causes of your depression and help you find coping mechanisms that work for you. Sometimes anti-depressant medication may be prescribed in order to balance out plunging hormone levels. Always remember that postpartum depression is very common and infinitely treatable.

It’s Not Just About You!

Depression not only affects you as the mom, but everyone around and even in you. Think about your baby ... Depression and anxiety during pregnancy can increase blood flow through the umbilical cord, potentially causing your baby to have a lower birth weight, smaller head size, and possibly delayed brain development. If you are depressed or anxious after your baby is born, you may have difficulty bonding with your baby and this, in turn, can affect your baby’s development and behavior.

Remember the adage, “If mama ain’t happy ain’t nobody happy?” Your illness also adversely affects your partner and other family members. They love you. They want you to be happy. They need you not to be sad ... postpartum depression doesn’t just hurt mom. It hurts the entire family, especially your baby. Help is just a phone call away. ■

“Now I lay me down to sleep...safely”

By Jennifer Combs, MSN, ARNP, Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies Coalition of Broward County, Inc.

Rock-a-bye baby in the tree top, when the wind blows the cradle will rock. When the bough breaks, the cradle will fall and down will come baby, cradle and all.

We have all heard this classic nursery rhyme and on the surface it is a soothing lullaby for tired little souls. Upon closer inspection, this little rhyme actually brings attention to a very real and timely subject: safe sleep for babies.

According to the latest statistics, 5.3% of all infant deaths in Florida are attributed to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) and sleep related deaths. There are definite steps that one can take to help reduce the risk of your baby becoming a victim of this tragic statistic.

Creating a safe sleep environment is extremely important for every baby. First and foremost, each baby should have their own separate sleep space. Infants should be placed for every sleep in a crib that has the appropriate sized mattress, slats that are no more than 2 3/8" apart, is in good repair and has a tight fitting crib sheet with no bumper pads. The crib should also be free of toys, pillows or loose blankets. The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that babies share a room with their parents, not a bed. Many people believe that co-sleeping promotes breastfeeding and bonding; however, adult beds harbor many hidden dangers.

Adult beds are exactly what the name implies, beds for adults and not babies. Each year, babies die as a result of sleep related incidents that occur in an adult bed. Loose bedding, pillows, fluffy blankets, soft mattresses and waterbeds all pose a risk for a baby. Sleeping adults themselves can be potentially harmful to the baby. When a baby is sleeping in the same bed as an adult, they can become the victim of overlaying and accidental suffocation. Sleeping adults are not aware of their movements during sleep, and can smother the baby or push the baby into the pillow or mattress. This tragedy can be avoided by simply placing babies in their own crib.

When putting the baby in their crib, it is always important to remember one thing – “back to sleep”, meaning placing the babies on their back to sleep.

Since the initiation of the “Back to Sleep” campaign by the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP), the incidence of SIDS has been reduced by 50%. The AAP recommends that babies should be placed on their back for each and every sleep. Since many parents rely on outside caregivers to help with the care of their babies, it is important that parents are strong advocates for their children when it comes to safe sleep. They should make sure that the caregiver knows to always place the baby in a crib on their back for each and every sleep time. It should also be stressed to the caregivers that it is never acceptable to place the baby on their stomach for sleep. So you have the safe crib, in the same room as the parents and the baby is on its back. What else can be done to promote safe sleep for baby?

One of the latest recommendations from the AAP for reducing the risk of SIDS is that babies should be given a pacifier when they are placed for sleep. If it falls out, while they are sleeping, it is not necessary for the parents to place it back in the baby's mouth. And for breastfeeding babies, use of the pacifier can be delayed for one month until good breastfeeding has been established.

It is also recommended that the temperature of the baby's sleep environment be between 70-72 degrees Fahrenheit. Parents should be careful not to overdress the baby. Overheating is a known risk factor for SIDS. This environment should also be smoke free. Even second hand smoke can increase the baby's risk for SIDS.

As you can see, there are many things that you can do to reduce the risk of your baby becoming a victim of a sleep related incident or SIDS. By implementing safe sleep practices in your own home, you too can be singing the last verse of the lullaby: No one's as dear, as baby to me. Wee little fingers. Eyes wide and bright. Now, sound asleep (safely), until morning light. ■

Healthy Mothers-Healthy Babies Coalition of Broward County, Inc., a non-profit organization dedicated to reducing infant and fetal mortality, offers individual and group safe sleeping education to anyone interested. Free Graco Pack-N-Plays are provided to families who are unable to afford a safe sleeping space for their baby through the organization's Cribs for Kids program. For information call 954.765.0550 ext. 303.

Kids and Cars: The Hidden Dangers

By: Jennifer Combs, MSN, ARNP

Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies Coalition of Broward County, Inc.

Did you know that in 2007, there were 942 children involved in non-traffic incidents, including unattended children in or around motor vehicles? Out of these 942 incidents, 232 children died. What parents often think of as a safe place for children can harbor many hidden dangers. These range from children being trapped in a trunk, to being accidentally run over by a motor vehicle, to suffering heat stroke or being strangled by a power window. The good news is that with increased awareness and education we as a community can help decrease these needless accidents from happening.

What starts as an innocent game of hide and seek can turn deadly when a child climbs into the trunk of a car and becomes trapped. To keep this from happening, parents can take a few steps to decrease the risk. All motor vehicles should be locked even when in the driveway or garage. Car keys and remote access devices should be out of the reach of children. Parents or caregivers should look through the entire car before locking it to ensure that everyone is safely out. Since 2002, all motor vehicles are equipped with glow in the dark trunk release handles. Children should be taught by parents that cars are not a playground and how to use the release handles.

Another hidden danger in motor vehicles is power windows. Each year children suffer permanent injury or even death as a result of these. The type of power window switches in cars in the USA is easily triggered by unsuspecting children. Often, when children stick the head, body or extremity out of the window, they will accidentally put pressure on the power switch, triggering the window to go up. Power windows can hold up to 80 pounds of pressure and can easily trap a child. Unfortunately, some of these children die from strangulation or suffer severe permanent injuries. Currently, there is legislation before Congress to ensure that all new motor vehicles will be equipped with power switches that will not be able to be easily triggered by children.

Power windows are not the only hidden danger for children. A major comes from being left alone in a car. In South Florida, we deal with extreme hot weather on a daily basis. Unfortunately, people still leave children unattended in their motor vehicles. This may be intentional or accidental, but the result is the same: between 1998 and 2008, in the US, 373 children died of heat stroke from being left unattended in a motor vehicle.

In a child, their core body temperature can rise 3 to 5 times faster than an adult's, causing brain injury or death. When the temperature outside is 93 degrees Fahrenheit, the temperature in the car can reach above 120 degrees within 20 minutes, even with the window cracked. Children do not have the developmental ability to get out of the car by themselves.

There are several tips that parents can follow to help decrease the chance that their child will be left behind in the car. Parents can place an infant toy on the front seat next to them, to remind them that the baby/child is in the back seat. They can also place their purse or briefcase in the back seat next to the child, so that they will have to look in the back before they lock the car.

One other danger children can fall victim to is that of being run over by a motor vehicle in a driveway or parking lot. Each year, a number of children lose their lives as a result of being backed over by a motor vehicle. This tragedy occurs more often these days because of the larger vehicles that we drive. SUV's and trucks often have large blind spots that virtually hide a small child from the driver's view. To help prevent this from happening, parents and caregivers should take five seconds to walk around the motor vehicle and "Spot the Tot." By taking the time to ensure that no children are near the car, we can prevent this tragedy happening.

As one can see, the dangers that exist for children and automobiles are very real. But with increased awareness and education, we can eliminate these dangers. ■

Swimming Lessons = SAFETY

Is your child's life in danger? If you live in the State of Florida, the answer to that question would be a resounding "yes!" Florida ranks 3rd in the nation for childhood drowning and in Broward County, it is the number one killer of children ages 4 and younger. Water holds a certain fascination for children and an unprotected pool is a serious safety hazard. Long before they take standardized test in school, they face the danger of drowning. For every child that drowns, four others are hospitalized for near drowning with most of them suffering from irreversible brain damage.

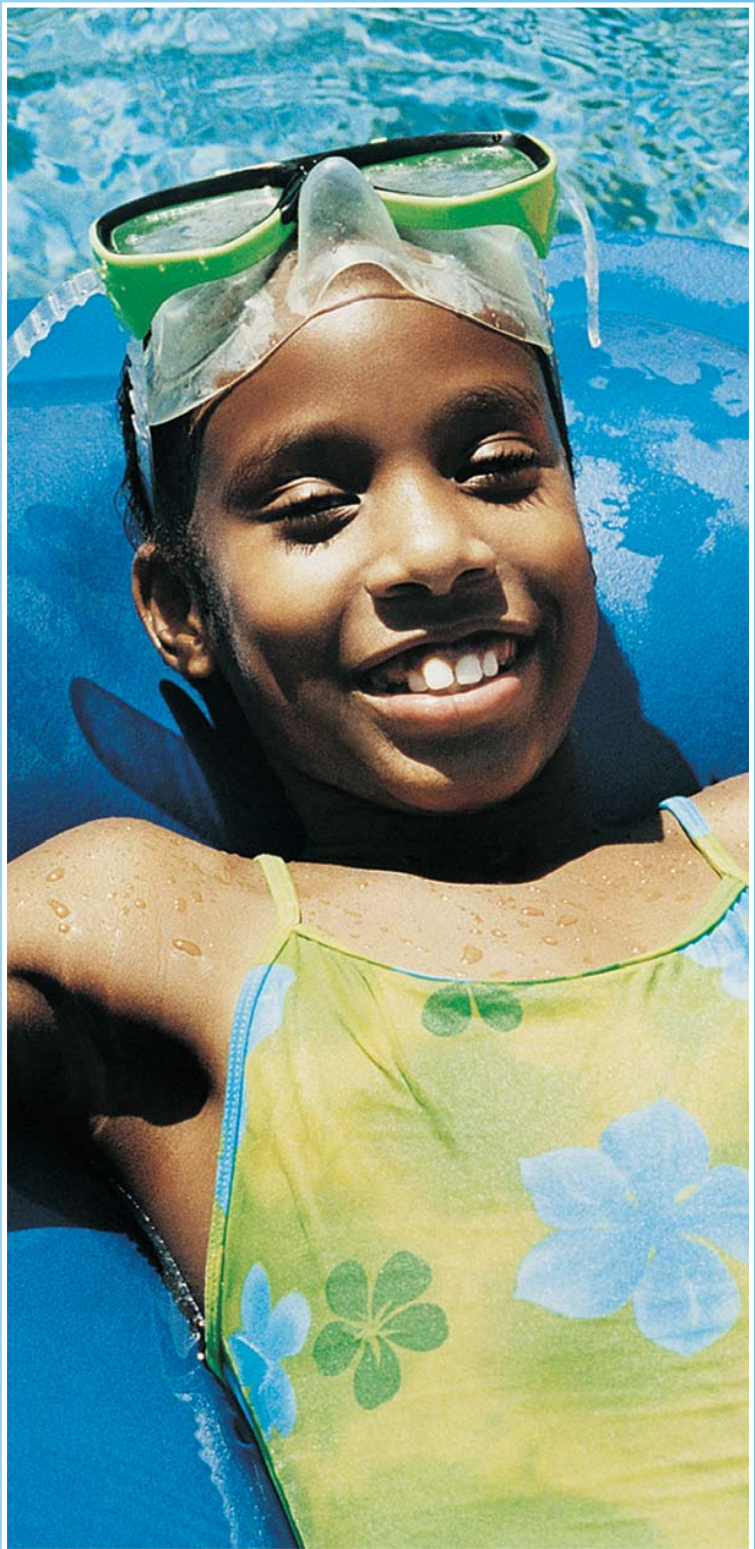

However, there are many ways to prevent drowning; just ask the experts. Nicole Dino, the Aquatics Coordinator at the new Miami Children's Hospital/Dan Marino Aquatic Facility says, "one of the most important things is to get swimming instruction at the earliest possible age." Dino also adds that it is necessary to maintain a balance between positive motivation and structured discipline when teaching children to swim.

The easiest way to prevent water tragedies is to use multiple barriers, commonly referred to as three layers of protection. Michael Turner, the Aquatic Supervisor for the City of Lauderdale, emphasizes the importance of parent supervision whenever children are around bodies of water. He adds that children are most likely to drown in their very own backyard after missing for less than three minutes. If a parent does lose sight of their child, the second layer of protection is to make sure that a working pool fence is installed and checked frequently to ensure a child cannot access the pool by climbing over the fence or opening the gate themselves. Patio furniture can become an easy ladder to climb over the fence.

The third layer of protection is having your child take refresher swimming lessons every year, and for parents to learn CPR and First Aid. If a child is missing, seconds count so check the pool or canal area first; it may be the difference between life and death. If we all band together and follow the three layers of protection, we can end the horrors of childhood drowning.

For more tips and advice on how to keep your children safe, please call SWIM Central at 954-357-SWIM to find swimming lessons in your area. Three major funders support SWIM Central: the Children's Services Council of Broward County, the Broward County School Board, and the Broward County Board of County Commissioners. ■

IMMUNIZATIONS: The Best Public Health Prevention

By: Community Health Nursing, Broward County Health Department

Each year, thousands of children enroll in a school or child care center protected against over 10 vaccine preventable diseases. Immunization against vaccine preventable disease is among the most significant public health success stories of all time! Today, vaccine preventable diseases are at or near record lows all because of efforts to make sure that children are properly immunized. To underscore the importance of immunizations, 74 organizations wrote a letter to Congress on June 2, 2008, jointly impressing the importance of a strong science based immunization policy. The list of diseases that have been nearly eliminated by vaccines is long, and millions of lives have been saved as a result. Yet, vaccine preventable diseases can and will return if immunization rates begin to decline. That is why the Broward County Health Department has made immunizations for children under the age of 2 one of its number one priorities.

Vaccine preventable diseases are spread from person to person and can spread into communities, affecting infants that are too young to be immunized and those suffering from immunodeficiency disorders. Measles, for example, is a common disease that most have heard about, but few under the age of sixty even remember. As a highly contagious acute viral disease, it can result in serious complications and death. As a result of a successful U.S. vaccination program, measles was declared eliminated in the United States in 2000. However, as more parents choose not to vaccinate their children, the implications can be profound.

Before introduction of measles vaccination in 1963, approximately 3 to 4 million persons had measles annually in the United States; approximately 400-500 died, 48,000 were hospitalized, and 1,000 developed chronic disability from measles encephalitis. Even with effective measles vaccine, imported measles has continued to create a substantial U.S. public health burden. Because these cases resulted from unvaccinated individuals arriving in the United States, the findings underscore the ongoing risk for measles among unvaccinated persons and the importance of maintaining high levels of vaccination. (MMWR May 9, 2008 / 57(18); 494-498 Measles --- United States, January 1-April 25, 2008).

Each year, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) launch the National Immunization Week campaign, designed to bring awareness of the importance of infant and childhood vaccinations. One focus during the April, 2008 National Infant Immunization Week events of the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and the CDC was to encourage parents to become informed medical consumers by talking to their healthcare providers and asking them questions about vaccines. The goal is to make sure that every infant and child are adequately immunized against such dreaded diseases as diphtheria, tetanus, polio, meningitis, hepatitis, influenza, and chickenpox.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Consumer Health Information advises parents to take the following steps before vaccination:

- (1) Review the Vaccine Information Statement (VIS) – these information statements explain to parents or legal guardians both the benefits and risks of a vaccine. Health practitioners are required by law to provide them;
- (2) Talk to your doctor about the benefits and risk of vaccines;
- (3) Tell your doctor about bad reactions;
- (4) Ask about conditions under which your child should not be vaccinated; and
- (5) Report adverse reactions.

The Broward County Health Department is making every effort to reach the Healthy People 2010 Objective in assuring 90% immunization coverage levels for infants and children. Involvement in community outreach activities, private partnerships, and access to free immunizations are some of the strategies that are in place to reach this goal.

For more information about free childhood and adolescent vaccines that are available at the Broward County Health Department and community outreach locations, please call (954) 467-4856. For a complete listing of all locations and hours of operation, visit our website at www.browardchd.org. ■

IMMUNIZATION REQUIREMENTS FOR 2008 – 2009 CHILD CARE AND SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

Chickenpox (Varicella) Requirements

Beginning with the 2008-2009 school year, children entering Kindergarten will be required to receive 2 doses of varicella. The first dose administered at age 12-15 months and the second dose at age 4-6 years. A second dose catch-up chickenpox (varicella) vaccination is recommended for children, adolescents, and adults who previously had received 1 dose. In addition routine vaccination of all healthy persons age 13 years of age or older that do not have a history of ever having the disease chickenpox (varicella).

Influenza Recommendations

Children aged 6 months – 8 years should receive 2 doses of Influenza vaccine, if they have not been previously vaccinated. It is recommended that children aged 6 months – 8 years who received 1 dose in their first year of vaccination, receive 2 doses the following year, with yearly doses in subsequent years. Influenza vaccine is also recommended for all persons, including school-aged children, who want to reduce the risk of becoming ill with influenza or to prevent the transmission of influenza to others.

Please check with your doctor or the Health Department for more information. Avoid long lines during the back to school rush and get immunizations done early!

Healthy Eating on a Budget

By Maude Heurtelou, SPHN, Broward County Health Department

If you've been to the supermarket lately, you may have found yourself wondering whether your imagination is playing tricks on you. Unfortunately not: some food packages have shrunk, the price of most items has gone up and yes, you are spending more money for less food.

As salaried and good paying jobs are not keeping up with the cost of living, this situation is affecting everyone across the board, creating a sense of urgency and a need for immediate action. The questions remain, however: how to feed a ravenous teen, a picky toddler, or a gourmet husband or wife who believes in going organic while on the same family budget? Can it be done?

YES, IT CAN! With a wide variety of food selection available, thanks to local production, importation and globalization, it is possible to continue to eat healthy on a budget. It's not hard to find fresh, frozen or canned food to fit almost any budget. Here in Florida, supermarkets, farmers' markets and flea markets offer a variety of expensive and inexpensive food choices. Consumers need to take an educated approach to shopping for food and make adjustments on their shopping lists to bring affordable food to the dinner table.

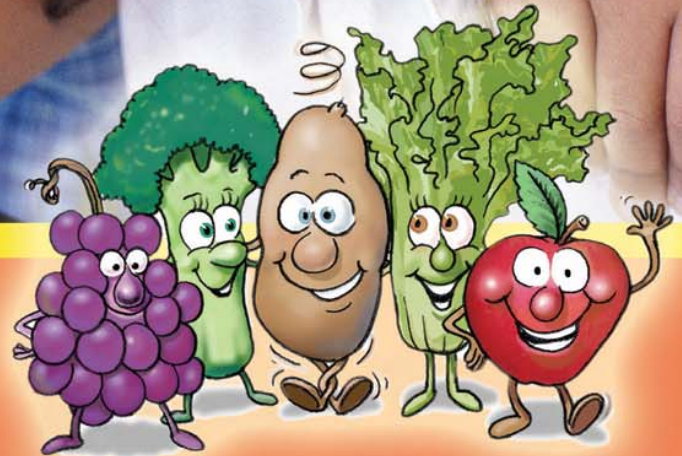

Here are some suggestions to assist you in keeping a balance between your budget and healthy meals.

1. Plan your shopping list before going to the supermarket. Sales may tempt you toward making unnecessary purchases.
2. Include on your list a variety of foods according to the Food Pyramid. Junk food and heavily processed food are frequently less nutritious and more expensive.
3. Shop for your family size. Buying wholesale or family size packages may cause small families to overeat or to waste food.
4. Choose the appropriate packaging size for each item consumed in your family. Compare the unit price and keep in mind how often each item is consumed in your household. Food consumed every day may save you money if bought in larger packaging size.
5. Take advantage of seasonal items, they are frequently cheaper.
6. Take your time to shop, comparing prices and nutritive values. Store brands are frequently nutritionally comparable to brand name items at a price often cheaper than name brand products on sale.
7. Use fresh fruits and vegetables for the first days after shopping and use frozen and canned foods for the rest of the week to avoid waste.
8. Prepare food for more than one meal, refrigerate or freeze additional meals soon after preparation to avoid spoilage.
9. Use leftovers for stews or other appropriate dishes.

10. Casseroles may be healthier and cheaper than dishes where meat is the main ingredient. Vegetable based soups are filling and inexpensive.
11. Beans, nuts and eggs are cheaper sources of excellent protein and there are many ways to include them in salads and other meatless recipes.
12. Find out when organic choices are really better, because they tend to be expensive.
13. To avoid impulse shopping, only shop when you are less rushed and never on an empty stomach.
14. Cook from scratch whenever possible and limit restaurants and take out.
15. Soaking beans overnight or using a pressure cooker are excellent ways to save time and money.
16. Cutting back in portion sizes and avoiding second helpings can contribute substantially to a healthier and cheaper lifestyle.

Finally, here are some healthy foods that yield both volume and nutritive values. They are very popular in most household recipes and they continue to be well appreciated by people of all ages. If you include old fashioned Oatmeal, potatoes, eggs, beans, peanut butter, seasonal fruits and vegetables, brown rice, milk and whole wheat bread from grocery shopping, you are sure to please the family without digging a hole in your pocket. ■ good food, good fun!

Does your child receive the nutrition needed to get through a busy day? Florida's Child Care Food Program provides healthy meals and snacks to children in child care settings, after-school programs and emergency shelters. If your child care center or day care home doesn't participate in this program, ask your child care provider to call 850-245-4323.

Florida Department of Health

Choosing QUALITY Child Care

Begin by visiting several early care and learning programs. On each visit, think about your first impression and:

1. Look

- Does the center or school look safe for your child?
- Do the caregivers/teachers enjoy talking and playing with children?
- Do they talk with each child at the child's eye level?
- Are there plenty of toys and learning materials within the child's reach?

2. Listen

- How does the child care setting sound?
- Do the children sound happy and involved?
- What about the teachers' voices; are they cheerful and patient?
- A place that's too quiet may mean not enough activity.
- A place that's too noisy may mean there is a lack of control.

3. Count

Count the number of children in the group, then count the number of staff members caring for them. Obviously, the fewer the number of children to each adult, the more attention your child will receive. A small number of children per adult is most important for babies and younger children.

4. Ask

It's very important that the adults who care for your children have the knowledge and experience to give them quality care. Ask about the background and experience of all staff, including the program director, caregivers, teachers and any other adults who will have contact with your child in the home or center.

5. Be Informed

Find out about efforts in your community to improve the quality of child care. Is your caregiver/provider involved in the activities to improve quality?

6. Choose

Consider your options: child care centers, family child care homes, Head Start, Pre-Kindergarten Early Intervention, school-age programs and summer camps.

7. Call

Before making a final decision on a program, call to find out if that center has had any violations and, if so, what they are.

Consider Your Options

Your first question should be, "What type of care best meets my child's needs?"

Several types are available outside the home. Each offers its own benefits:

Child Care Center

This is care and educational activity offered to a group of children in a non-residential setting accommodating more than five children.

Child Care Home

This is care and educational activity offered to a group of five children or less in the home of a person who provides the care and is licensed.

Head Start & Pre-K Early Intervention

These programs are open to children from low-income families and/or those with special needs. Programs are typically located on school campuses or in a community setting and generally follow the school-year schedule.

School-Age Child Care

These are programs for children ages 5 through 12 covering out of school time. These may be in schools, child care centers, family child care homes, youth organizations and faith-based organizations.

Summer Camps

These camps are offered in public and private settings including counties and municipalities. Licensing is not required. ■

QRIS: Broward County Quality Rating and Improvement System

QRIS is a comprehensive and voluntary initiative designed to enhance the quality of early care and education programs for children birth to five years of age

QRIS looks at:

- Professional Qualifications of the staff in early learning programs
- Program quality, using the research based Environment Rating Scales (ECERS-R, ITERS-R, FCCERS-R)
- Ratio and group size in classrooms
- Curriculum implemented for all age groups
- Program administration, including family engagement practices and business practices

The culmination of the quality improvement process is the awarding of a star rating from one to five stars.

To learn more call 954-761-2133.

and education in Broward County

The Quality Ratings for the QRIS program are conducted by Broward County Children's Services Division, Child Care Licensing and Enforcement Section, with funding from the Early Learning Coalition of Broward County, Inc. and the State of Florida, Agency for Workforce Innovation, Office of Early Learning.

Disabilities and Special Needs: Choosing the Best After-School Program

By: Herm Fishbein, Ed. D., Special Needs Project Manager, Children's Services Council of Broward County

Selecting the right after-school and out of school program for children and youth with disabilities can be a stressful and anxiety producing event for parents, caregivers and their children. This is a time for balancing the needs of the family with the needs of the child. It's a time to balance work schedules with aftercare needs. Children with Special Needs often require accommodations as well as an opportunity to reinforce skills learned during the regular school day. These programs can offer the needed mix of academics, recreation, social skill, employability skills and communication skills. It's always a good idea to have your child involved in the process to whatever extent they can manage. This allows them to begin the process of self-advocating which will be so important as they get older.

To find the right solutions to your child's program needs, you need to ask the right questions. Before visiting a program ask yourself the following:

- Which program is best; a five day after-school program, a three day program, an inclusionary program, or a combination of these? What would my child prefer and what would best meet his/her needs?
- Would my child benefit from a more relaxed, recreational program or a structured routine that's closer to the everyday school experience?
- How much time do I need away from my child to recharge my batteries and continue to be a patient, loving parent?
- Would a mix of after-school and home be better than an entire year of either?
- Would my adolescent benefit from a program that stressed employment, social, and communication skills? Can he/she handle part time or full time?
- How will my choice of program impact my other children?
- Does my child need a program that focuses on lifeskills?

Quality After-school Special Needs programs are designed to accommodate the individual needs of those participating. They should be able to provide opportunities for your child to interact with non-disabled peers in low pressure environments. They should be close to home, provide opportunities to socialize with peers with similar disabilities, be able to make necessary accommodations for your child, provide opportunity for family networking, have trained and experienced staff that can deal with specialized medical or behavioral situations, and have moderate to high levels of supervision (staff to student ratios).

To narrow your search, here are some more questions to ask:

- What activities will my child participate in? Who supervises them?
- What are the discipline rules? Can the program implement some of my child's educational goals?
- Are services such as speech, occupational or physical therapy available? Is swimming instruction part of the program? Is there time for completion of homework?

- Are community field trips included? Are lunch and snacks provided?
- Can a 1 on 1 aide be provided if my child needs it? Can student to staff ratios be modified?
- Will the program supply the names of other families to use as references?
- Are there ample opportunities during the day, to work on you child's social and communication skills?
- Are services available on days when there is no school?
- Will my child benefit from being in a more inclusive setting?

Once you have narrowed your choices, speak with the Director or Service Provider Head in person. Tour the facility and look for bright, cheerful rooms, staff involved with children, look for lots of interesting learning material and activities, and check the staff to student ratio. Make note of the length of time the program is in session. Spend time observing and listening. Some after-school programs are run in community settings, such as schools or houses of worship. Others are run by private or not-for-profit agencies.

A few questions to ask:

- Is the program licensed or approved by the state?
- Is it accredited or working towards accreditation?
- May I see your policy handbook and/or Mission statement?
- How do you handle sick children?
- Do you have orientation for new families? How do you handle transitions?
- How is discipline administered?
- Are there any toilet training requirements?
- Are the buildings physically accessible?
- What guidelines are used with children with special needs?
- How are families involved in the program?
- How experienced/trained is the staff?
- What transportation services are available?
- Is a particular program philosophy being followed?

A quality after-school program will challenge your child in all the right ways. It will provide opportunities to try new things, meet new people and allow opportunities for creative play, communication, and socialization. Programming will be strength-based, centered on your child, and provide for lots of opportunity for success. The program will have measurable outcomes and provide a positive learning environment. Good Special Needs programs treat parents as partners, have trained experienced staff, respect children and parents, engage youth, and provide activities that will lend support during the school year. Take the time to ask the right questions and your children will have a wonderful experience. No question about it. ■

Family Child Care is Family Friendly Care!

What is Family Child Care?

Family Child Care is a home-based service where child care is provided in the caregiver's home. The home must be licensed or registered according to county and state laws. Family Child Care is the most preferred type of care for young children, especially infants and toddlers. Many family child care homes provide high quality programs for preschoolers, school age, and children with special needs. Family child care is home-away-from-home personalized professional child care.

How to Use the Listings

- Determine your family's child care requirements by considering your child's individual needs, the location, the hours of care required, the cost of care and other child care issues.
- Review the Child Care section so you will know the criteria upon which to evaluate your family's needs and select an appropriate provider.
- Find the child care options available in your area in the listings section.
 - The caregivers are divided according to two different factors. First, they are separated by type of care with contact information listed after the name of the provider. Those providers are then sorted by city and zip code, so that you can easily find all of the available care in your home or work area.
 - There are three types of child care providers listed: child care centers, family child care homes and school age programs. To decide which is more suited for the needs of you and your child, refer to the articles in this directory on choosing quality child care.
 - The listings of providers offer several types of information. This information includes the days care is available, hours of operation, the ages of children accepted, status of regulation or licensing and services offered. One service indicated is whether the provider offers financial assistance. Another column indicates whether a provider has been accredited by one of several national or state organizations that evaluates, monitors and certifies child care providers. The last column indicates whether the provider offers a Voluntary Pre-Kindergarten program. For information on VPK, please see the article on page 36.
